Taking from our draped tradition, Tarun Tahiliani’s new menswear collection goes the "new democrazy" way by exploring structured draping in jackets, waistcoats and all sorts of tunics.

India re-interpreted with a variety of techniques, the new collection presents Tussar, stretch, wools, cotton linen and voiles in a blend of draped and twisted forms, presenting the modern fakir or the world traveller.

The collection looked forward to a sensual contemporary interpretation of Indian fashion in a variety of black, beige, roan, greige and a range of shades of ecru and taupe.
